Description

The Ambulatory Programs Nurse Practitioner (NP) provides high-quality, patient-centered care within the Ambulatory Programs. This position will primarily be responsible for internal medicine follow-up and continuing care as directed by the internal medicine physicians (i.e. checking test results, medication management, referrals, etc.).

This could also include on an as needed basis the Ambulatory Day Clinic, Respiratory Clinic, Wound Clinic, Chemotherapy, and Hemodialysis. This role involves managing acute and chronic conditions and ensuring patients timely access to care, coordinating with internal medicine physicians, interdisciplinary teams, community partners, and contributing to program development and patient education initiatives. The NP plays a critical role in optimizing patient outcomes and enhancing the overall experience of care in an ambulatory setting.

As the Ambulatory Programs NP you will work closely with Internal Medicine physicians to provide longitudinal care for outpatients. This would include providing in person and virtual reassessments, ordering and reviewing investigations, prescriptions (including renewals) and titration of medications for patients with CHF, COPD, Cirrhosis, Diabetes Mellitus and other complex comorbidities.

Additional responsibilities include providing primary care for internal medicine patients without a primary care provider and assisting with patient concerns including arranging follow up when required. This position is an opportunity to increase your breadth and depth of practice as you will be supported by the Internal Medicine physicians working at LWDH.
